

Inland Children's Chorus To Appear With Orchestra Tuesday

Join Dayton Philharmonic; Unable To Go To Baltimore

BY VIRGINIA D. STURM

THE annual appearance of the Inland Children's chorus will be the occasion for the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra's gala Christmas program Tuesday night.

The concert is to be given in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple under the direction of Paul Katz.

The Inland Children will be directed by Richard Westbrook. The chorus has made several appearances with the orchestra, and on each appearance has but strengthened their situation musically in the community.

It is unfortunate that conditions will not permit the Inland Children's chorus to accept the invitation from the program committee of the Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Music clubs to appear on the program in Baltimore in April.

Moving a large chorus of this type, and the people which would be required to look after their welfare would be a tremendous undertaking.

It is likely that the chorus will be able to sing at the next convention which will be in the mid-west, probably, in 1941.

Mary Werner MacCash has been the accompanist of the chorus since its inception.

ONE shouldn't brag about things until you've got them, but very lately I received a book which to my satisfaction will provide almost as much pleasure in the future as it has afforded in the past few weeks.

It is without a doubt one of the best musical books ever to be published in the realm of musical literature. Named "The Music Album," and devoted to Samuel G. Mayhew, it carries a foreword by John Van Carpenter.

The Music Album is designed to give you a ready reference to all the best, and gives a listing of the musical compositions you are based, and gives a listing of the composers, and 1922 compositions, and is definitely in the nature of a music album. It is intended that you should post it in front of your music collection, and therefore enhance your collection.

The book really is a story album, for there are stories of the lives of the composers. Each page has a place for a complete list of each composition. What, when, where. There are lists of the exclusive music, including chamber music, and solo and small ensembles, for songs and dramatic acts. There are even lists of which are rather large and are intended to be posted in the right places.

Whether you be young or old, looking around your music shelves for concerts or simply turning to the book in a moment of leisure to the compositions listed, and even your own compositions on their own merits. In its foreword the composer says:

INLAND CHILDREN'S CHORUS

Mohrhorst, Mrs. Carlton (Mrs. H. M. Smith), Mrs. W. H. Allen, Mrs. B. O. Cass, Mrs. Springer Crawford, Mrs. Daniel Packard, Mrs. Edward Thomas, and Mrs. Thomas Barber.

The program will be given at 8:30 P. M. in Room 200, City Hall, Thursday, Dec. 22. All friends of the school are invited.

Student Appointed

LEBANON, Dec. 15. — Miss Peggy Paul, who was connected with a Lebanon newspaper before attending at Miami University in September, has been chosen a member of the speakers' bureau of the college, her father Paul L. Paul, local school teacher, has been informed. Miss Paul was graduated from Lebanon high school last May with Magna Cum Laude honors.

A GIFT FROM PARTNER'S MEANS SO MUCH MORE!

GRUEN SIDE CURVE
15 Jewels
What could be more appropriate as a gift

MERRY CHRISTMAS
GIFTS that keep on Giving from Baynham's Store of Delicacies

Join Dayton Philharmonic; Unable To Go To Baltimore

BY VIRGINIA D. STURM

THE annual appearance of the Inland Children's chorus will be the occasion for the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra's gala Christmas program Tuesday night.

The concert is to be given in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple under the direction of Paul Katz.

The Inland Children will be directed by Richard Westbrook. The chorus has made several appearances with the orchestra, and on each appearance has but strengthened their situation musically in the community.

It is unfortunate that conditions will not permit the Inland Children's chorus to accept the invitation from the program committee of the Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Music clubs to appear on the program in Baltimore in April.

Moving a large chorus of this type, and the people which would be required to look after their welfare would be a tremendous undertaking.

It is likely that the chorus will be able to sing at the next convention which will be in the mid-west, probably, in 1941.

Mary Werner MacCash has been the accompanist of the chorus since its inception.

It is unfortunate that conditions will not permit the Inland Children's chorus to accept the invitation from the program committee of the Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Music clubs to appear on the program in Baltimore in April.

Moving a large chorus of this type, and the people which would be required to look after their welfare would be a tremendous undertaking.

Source: Newspapers.com