

Santa Fe Opera Signs Daytonian

A 22-year-old Dayton baritone, Ludlow Hallman, has been signed for the summer season with the Santa Fe opera. In addition, Hallman, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hallman of Cornell Dr., will appear as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony orchestra next Sunday.

The Santa Fe season will be for nine weeks, starting in June. During the series, the Daytonian will appear with such singers as Robert Merrill.

Hallman's appearance with the St. Louis orchestra is the result of a young artists' competition. He will be featured in the concert at Kiel Opera house along with Pamela Horsley, pianist, and Wayne Morie, clarinetist. Eleazar de Cavalho will conduct the special bicentennial concert.

A GRADUATE of Oberlin college, Hallman took his junior year at the Mozarteum in Austria. He has a teaching fellowship at Southern Illinois university where he also studies with former opera singer Marjorie Lawrence.

Hallman has been singing ever since he was 9 and a soloist with the Inland Children's chorus here.

For the St. Louis concert he will sing arias from the Marriage of Figaro and the Barber of Seville.

LUDLOW HALLMAN
To Sing in Opera